Disarm Bomb In Airline Extortion Plot

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A bomb was found in a Vancouver International Airport locker and disarmed Friday night after a Canadian jetliner with 88 persons aboard was diverted to Anchorage, Alaska, in an extortion plot, authorities said.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police said CP Air officials were directed to the locker after receiving a phone call demanding "a large sum of money."

Authorities said a warning of a bomb threat was sent to the crew of a DC8, en route from Vancouver to Tokyo, and it was diverted to Anchorage. It was searched, but no bomb was found.

The plane remained overnight in Anchorage for a so-called legal rest period before continuing Saturday morning to Tokyo.

Two flights from Toronto to Montreal with a total of nearly 200 passengers aboard were held in Toronto for searches after the threat was received.

Both planes continued to Montreal after one plane was detained for 90 minutes and the other for nearly three hours. No bombs were reported found there, however.

Officials declined to discuss the extortion threat, but one report put the ransom at $100,000. An early report also said the bomb weighed 30 pounds.

The Tokyo-bound "Empress 401," was about 400 miles north of Amchitka Island on the transpolar route over the Bering Sea when the crew received the warning, the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center at Elmendorf Air Force Base said.

The crew was warned at 5:40 p.m. Alaska time; authorities said.

Report IRA Plans Trouble During March

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, (AP) — Security forces say guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army are slipping into the blockaded town of Newry to attack British troops sent there to disperse a planned civil rights march by Roman Catholics on Sunday.

Roads to Newry, near the border with the Irish Republic, have been blocked by soldiers who are searching vehicles for hidden arms. British intelligence officers say they were tipped by a woman that the IRA gave her sons British army uniforms to wear at the parade.

The planned parade Sunday by thousands of civil rights marchers has been declared illegal under Northern Ireland's ban on public processions. IRA leaders claim they have advised their members to avoid Newry over the week to prevent another "bloody Sunday" in this embattled British province.

In everyone's mind was the fear of a repetition of last Sunday's Londonderry shootout that left 13 civilians dead in clashes with army paratroopers.

Civil rights organizers pressed ahead with plans for the Newry march despite appeals to call it off from political and church leaders including William Cardinal Conway, Catholic Primate of all Ireland.

Nearly 90 per cent of Newry's 18,500 population are Catholics who mostly favor uniting the province with the independent Republic to the south.

North Viets Report VC Reject Nixon Peace Plan

Love Triangle Enters Irving Case

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Danish singer Nina van Pallandt, who disputes Clifford Irving's claim about meetings in Mexico with Howard Hughes, says Irving had asked to marry her.

She said Friday she would go before a federal grand jury studying possible fraud charges against Irving and that her future relationship with the novelist "must now depend on the outcome of this whole affair."

The grand jury in New York is investigating Irving's claim that a book manuscript he sold to McGraw-Hill, Inc., was a Hughes autobiography assembled at meetings with the reclusive billionaire.

Irving had signed an affidavit saying he and Hughes had long sessions in Mexico about the purported autobiography and that Mrs. van Pallandt went with him.

However, the singer says she knows of no way Irving could have met Hughes in Mexico because she was never away from him more than 90 minutes on the trip.

"He loves me; he has asked me to marry him and I am sure that is why he thought I would stand by him," she told newsmen Friday as she arrived in London with her manager, John Marshall.

"I never met Howard Hughes and I'm inclined to think now that Clifford has not either," she said.

Irving, 41, is married to his fourth wife, a Swiss artist, Mrs. van Pallandt, 39, has been separated from her second husband since 1969 when she and Irving met on the Spanish island of Ibiza, where both have homes.

Former Hughes aide John Meier told the jury Friday he could tell by reading the manuscript whether the purported autobiography was authentic and offered to do so.

There were also these developments in the case:

—Richard R. Suskind, Irving's researcher in gathering the Hughes material, was subpoenaed at his home on the Spanish island of Majorca to appear Monday before the panel.

—Irving spent 90 minutes closeted with two assistant U.S. attorneys but declined to comment on the conference. His scheduled appearance before the grand jury has been postponed.

—There were strong indications that the panel planned to question Robert A. Maheu and his son Peter. The elder Maheu managed Hughes' enterprises in Nevada for years, then sued his former boss for $50 million after he was fired in 1970.

—Asst. U.S. Atty. Robert Morvillo, overseer of the investigation, said Hughes himself might be subpoenaed for questioning but added, "We are not anywhere near ready."

—McGraw-Hill, which planned to publish the purported autobiography, said Swiss police, at its request, had frozen an account in the United Bank of Switzerland in Zurich. How the account was related to the Irving case was unclear. Swiss authorities already had frozen two other Zurich accounts in which Irving's wife had deposited McGraw-Hill money.

—The New York Daily News noted government sources as saying that Irving had attempted to convert all his security holdings into cash but was blocked by Internal Revenue Service agents. The sources did not reveal the amount of the stocks.

Threat Of Violence Mars Allende's Political Plans

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende's Marxist government is at odds with Chile's most extreme left group and some politicians predict the row could end in violence.

Leaders of Allende's Popular Unity coalition have quietly warned the group, the Leftist Revolutionary Movement, or MIR, to stop all illegal activities.

But MIR leaders, angered by the pace of Allende's approach to socialism via the ballot box rather than bullets, are reported to have refused and threatened to step them up.

The government's position was delivered after leaders of seven of the eight parties that form Allende's coalition met in secret last week and concluded that MIR activities, were in part responsible for the administration's deteriorating image and the loss of four elections in less than a year.

In two special elections, to choose a new senator and a new congressman in January, the Allende government's candidates lost by wide margins.

A Communist party working paper, leaked to a prominent newspaper, said the activities of the MIR and of ultra-leftist elements in general were "without a doubt one of the factors that has contributed to the deterioration of the government's position."

The Communists, who are spearheading the government drive, have also called MIR leaders "irresponsible," a grave accusation in the Marxist political lexicon in Chile. MIR leaders struck back with accusations that the Communists were "seeking arrangements" with fascist circles.

In the 15 months he has been in office, Allende frequently has spoken out against the MIR's activities but has taken no effective action to curb them. He apparently hoped instead the group would calm down on its own. But the organization has not.

Both Political Parties See Full Coiffers For Ohio Races

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State officials of both the Republican and Democratic parties say they expect to have plenty of money to fight this year's political battles.

State Republican Chairman John Andrews said the financial outlook was "very good."

"The larger contributors are maintaining their levels for a presidential election year," Andrews said. "There's a lot of enthusiasm."

Democratic officials said there will be no problem in meeting the $500,000 goal the party has set for its 1972 budget.

"If we did a minimal amount of fund raising between now and June, the goal would be reached," said fund raiser Mark Milligan.

Both parties say they will channel a large part of their available cash into General Assembly races, where Gov. John Gilligan hopes his reapportionment plan will give him a Democratic legislature in 1973. Andrews said the GOP will have at least 10 fund-raising dinners around the state, all before June 30, when it hopes to have 90 per cent of its fund-raising completed.

Milligan said the Democrats have increased efforts to solicit contributions from big money donors through "receptions" in Ohio cities at which party notables are "invited" to join the Buckeye Executive Club. Dues are $1,000, but members aren't required to stop there.

The party made about $300,000 at its 3,000-seat, fund-raising dinner last June. Another is tentatively planned for June 3 which could be even bigger, Milligan said.

The Republican fund-raising effort has the advantage of a seasoned operation with 35 years of experience. The system now includes computerized, up-to-date information on prospective donors.

Andrews said the Republican effort has been made easier with an incumbent president, because contributors don't have to wait until after the national convention to see who will be the candidate.

Order New Trial In Murder Case

CINCINNATI (AP) — Attorneys for Mrs. Brenda Joyce Anders, 29, today sought to raise $50,000 in bail after the Ohio Supreme Court ordered a new trial following her first-degree murder conviction.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William S. Matthews set bond Friday on a defense motion. The new trial had been ordered in January for Mrs. Anders who had been sentenced to death for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Anna Frances Walls, 37.

The high court ruled the jurist in her trial failed to explain innocence by reason of insanity to the jury.

Pollution Outlays Seen Skyrocketing

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The steel industry will have to spend $5 billion in the next 10 years to meet current air and water pollution control standards, according to a Republic Steel Corp. official.

Robert P. Carpenter, Republic vice president for environmental control, told a forum at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History Thursday that his firm spent $150 million to $160 million on pollution control in the past decade.

Chillicothe Institute Chief Retires

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Saying the "crisis-oriented work" is for a young man, the retiring Chillicothe Correctional Institute superintendent suggested that the state limit the number of years a man may work within a prison.

"A person can handle so much of it, and then it begins to tell on him," William Salisbury, 53, said Friday on his last day at the post.

Salisbury, who has accepted a management job in Los Angeles noted the FBI, the federal Bureau of Prisons and many local police departments have regulations which restrict the number of years a person may work for them.

"I'm not saying that every man 60 or 65 should be retired," Salisbury said. "I would say, though, that if a man of 50 had 20 years in a prison situation, he should be given a job away from a prison, perhaps an administrative job."

Salisbury has been in prison work 30 years. He began at the Ohio Penitentiary in 1952, went to the Lebanon Correctional Institution as a deputy warden in 1962 and came here as superintendent in 1966.

His successor here has not yet been named.

Hanoi Mum On Own Views Of Proposal

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnamese Premier Phan Van Dong says his Viet Cong allies have rejected President Nixon's eight-point peace plan, the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks reported today.

But the delegation did not say whether the plan was rejected by North Vietnam as well.

The delegation said Dong told a Hungarian group visiting Hanoi today that the Viet Cong response to the plan amounted to "an energetic indictment condemning the policy of Vietnamization of the war and rejecting with well-founded and incisive arguments the deceit of the so-called peace plan in eight points of President Nixon."

The Viet Cong said at the last session of the peace talks on Thursday: "Nguyen Van Thieu must resign immediately. The Saigon administration must end its warlike policy, disband at once its machine of oppression and constraint against the people, stop its 'pacification' policy, disband the concentration camps, set free those people arrested on political grounds and guarantee to the people the democratic liberties as provided by the 1954 Geneva Agreement on Vietnam."

It also demanded the United States set a "specific terminal date" for withdrawal of "troops, advisers, military personnel, weapons and war material" from South Vietnam.

Previously, the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have said only that the eight points were "not acceptable." The U.S. State Department said that wording did not constitute a rejection.

Nixon's proposal called for withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam six months after a peace agreement and internationally supervised elections in South Vietnam. Withdrawal would be accompanied by simultaneous release of all prisoners held by both sides.

Under the proposal, Thieu would resign a month before the elections, leaving power in the hands of a caretaker government.

Speeding Youth Has 'Explanation'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 17-year-old driver led police on a 15-minute, 80-mile-per-hour chase Friday afternoon and was caught in a school zone.

Officer Larry Hayes asked the youth why he did it, and said the youth replied that he had a bad driving record and didn't want another ticket.

Pay Board Proposal Not Clear

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Personnel Director Paul Corey says he is awaiting more details on a federal Pay Board proposal which reportedly would permit Ohio to grant state employees an immediate seven-per cent wage hike.

"We are not sure what the Wage Board is offering," Corey said Friday after being advised of the proposal in a telephone call from John Hulcher, assistant to the executive director of the board.

Corey said Hulcher told him he would put the proposal in writing and mail it Monday.

A 10-per cent, across-the-board pay raise for 48,000 state employees was granted by the legislature in December. Payment of the raises has been withheld pending Pay Board approval under federal economic guidelines.

Corey said Hulcher indicated that if the state accepted the plan for seven-per cent increases, it would have an opportunity to provide additional increases later.

Hulcher also said, according to Corey, that the Pay Board may not consider the Ohio raises for another 30 to 60 days. "Our request for a wage adjustment, when considered on a 12-month basis, is less than seven per cent, the federal guideline for cases that involve an exception because of inequities," Corey said.

"If the federal offer is better than what we are seeking, we will be happy to accept it."

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Actress Diana Dors has joined a campaign aimed at allowing prisoners to have sexual intercourse with their wives in jail.

Nixon Re-Election Campaign Gains Speed

By ROBERT L. CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
President Nixon's re-election campaign is being geared up with GOP spokesmen in California and New Hampshire calling the Democratic field a group of "flip-flop critics" who have been on all sides of almost every issue.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, opposed to the President on certain issues in the past, backed his party's boss firmly Friday formally opening Nixon's quest for California's bloc of 45 electoral votes, largest in the nation.

"This is an election that will match a solid and consistent performer against a group of politicians who have been on every side of almost every issue," Reagan said of the June 6 primary.

Reagan, who challenged Nixon for the 1968 nomination and has split occasionally with Nixon on welfare reform most recently—is chairman of the California Campaign to Re-elect the President.

In New Hampshire, meanwhile, Interior Secretary Robert C. B. Morton said the Democrats attacking Nixon's latest peace efforts are "flip-flop critics."

"What amazes me," Morton said in a Salute to the President dinner speech in Concord, "is that many of these critics were the architects of the policies we are trying to correct. They have repudiated their previous decisions without a blush of shame."

Morton, formerly a Maryland congressman and GOP national chairman, was in New Hampshire to help launch Nixon's campaign for the nation's first primary March 7.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, who has been the target of much GOP rhetoric for his recent criticism of Nixon's peace moves, said at a rally in Skokie, Ill., that he "will keep talking about Vietnam until someone in power proposes a peace plan that could succeed instead of repeating past plans that have failed."

Muskie proposed setting a specific date for withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Indochina with the release of prisoners of war and safety of the troops the only conditions.

The Maine Democrat, also campaigning in Wisconsin for that state's April 4 primary, received a standing ovation at the University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire when he said the nation's No. 1 job is halting the Vietnam war—a war he said that "has acted as a dam holding back our nation's resources."

Muskie also received a broadside from the Democratic side as Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota again renewed a challenge for a televised debate in New Hampshire.

McGovern's campaign coordinator Frank Mankiewicz said in Washington Muskie will be "repudiating his own slogan" of trust and confidence if he does not accept McGovern's offer.

Muskie's office said later the senator will be campaigning in Florida Feb. 16, when

Disarm Bomb In Airline Extortion Plot

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A bomb was found in a Vancouver International Airport locker and disarmed Friday night after a Canadian jetliner with 88 persons aboard was diverted to Anchorage, Alaska, in an extortion plot, authorities said.

The Viet Cong said at the last session of the peace talks on Thursday: "Nguyen Van Thieu must resign immediately. The Saigon administration must end its warlike policy, disband at once its machine of oppression and constraint against the people, stop its 'pacification' policy, disband the concentration camps, set free those people arrested on political grounds and guarantee to the people the democratic liberties as provided by the 1954 Geneva Agreement on Vietnam."

It also demanded the United States set a "specific terminal date" for withdrawal of "troops, advisers, military personnel, weapons and war material" from South Vietnam.

Previously, the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have said only that the eight points were "not acceptable." The U.S. State Department said that wording did not constitute a rejection.

Nixon's proposal called for withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam six months after a peace agreement and internationally supervised elections in South Vietnam. Withdrawal would be accompanied by simultaneous release of all prisoners held by both sides.

Under the proposal, Thieu would resign a month before the elections, leaving power in the hands of a caretaker government.

Farmers Need Analysis Program

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

The Ohio Farm Business Analysis is designed to evaluate the farm business. Your farm can be analyzed on the basis of resources available and receipts and expenses incurred in using these resources.

Efficiency factors will be computed and will indicate the relative strengths and weaknesses in your business.

In addition, state and area summaries will be provided to allow you to compare your operation with other similar operations. After two or more years' analysis have been made on your farm you will be able to compare these years to determine if you are correcting weak points in the business and, in general, moving in the right direction.

You can take the information requested on the input form from your cash receipt and expense records, from your inventory and depreciation schedule, and from your crop and livestock enterprise records. These items are standard in most accounting systems; therefore, it is not absolutely necessary that you use the Ohio Commercial Farm Account Book to complete forms.

THE program in farm management of The Ohio State University provides specialized educational assistance in all phases of Farm Business Organization and Management. The foundation of this program is a Farm Account and Business Analysis Project carried out in cooperation with The Ohio State University and farm operators from all over Ohio.

Complete the farm records and then they are analyzed under the supervision of Extension farm management specialists by use of an electronic computer.

If your records are complete, including beginning and closing inventories, and you are interested in having an analysis of your last year's records, take them to your County Extension Agent. Your farm will be given a county number and a special farm number at the local office. This means that the identification of your farm will be known only by you and your county agent.

A summary is made of all records turned in each year by enterprise groups. This summary is analyzed to provide current information on the changing economics of the farming business. It provides an organized method of evaluating new technological developments for the benefit of all farmers in the area.

In brief, it's aimed at answering (1) What's new? (2) Is it successful? (3) Does it pay? (4) Does it fit on my farm? Call the Extension Office now — 474-5734.

And So It Grows

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

The high temperature in November and December may have stimulated a tendency for some early spring flowering plants to bloom. Let's hope the sudden switch to freezing weather hasn't damaged our plants.

A mid-winter project for you could be forcing branches of early flowering shrubs into bloom. Make cuttings from the forsythia, pussywillow, Japanese flowering quince, flowering plum, cherry, almond, pear, crabapple, redbud, saucer magnolia and weigela around your home. Check the plant buds to see if color has developed before you make cuttings. On forsythia, cut open the cigar-shaped buds on last year's growth. Cut only stems on which these buds show color development. With any plant, choose for cutting only those branches that have an abundance of buds.

Place the branches in warm water in a cool part of the house. A basement is a good location, usually. Spray the branches periodically so the buds do not dry out. Cover them with a plastic bag or burlap. Buds will begin to swell within a few days. In two or three weeks, branches should be covered with blossoms and you can bring them into the living quarters.

If you've got any notions of planting fruit trees next spring, better order your trees now. Orders from nursery catalogs will be held and processed at the proper time for you to receive your trees for planting.

Local nurserymen will do the same. Give them your order so they will have your trees on hand at spring planting time. The same is true for flower and vegetable seeds.

Don't wait until you are ready to plant to start looking for trees and seed. Catalogs of nurseries along with the home garden bulletin 287 of the Ohio Extension Service are good guides for selecting varieties and making seed orders.

If your house plants are not doing too well, they may need repotting. Causes may be the pot is too small for the plant, soil is too tight — lacking in organic matter and nutrients, or it may be the humidity in your home. Dry air quickly saps plants of moisture.

When repotting, use light, well-aerated, well-drained garden loam and change the plant to a larger pot. A mixture of two parts soil, one part organic matter such as coarse peat moss or partially rotted manure and one part perlite, vermiculite or coarse sand will make an excellent growing medium. Packaged potting soil is available and convenient as well as sterilized to prevent trouble from weeds, nematodes and other soil pests.

Food Preparation: It's Up To You

Cooking can be a great daily adventure. Interesting and exotic flavor and aroma can be added to everyday meals, to lift them out of the "ordinary" category. Eating can be a great deal more than just satisfying hunger.

Intriguing new flavors in foods don't just happen. Herbs and spices must contribute to the food, blend in with it and bring out its best flavor. Sauces and gravies must enhance the food and add the finishing touch to meats, fish, poultry and vegetables.

Consider these suggestions on food preparation:

Spices — use sparingly. They should improve the flavor, not smother it. For fresh spices, buy the whole seed (as black pepper corns or whole nutmeg) and grate or grind it as needed. In powdered spices, select as small a container as possible. Keep containers tightly closed.

Herb and spice charts suggest flavors for different foods. You can experiment, adding sparingly until the amount is determined that suits the taste of your family. Begin by adding mace to chicken casserole, coriander to pea soup, caraway to lamb stew or poppy seeds to poultry stuffing or noodles.

Soups — Ordinary canned, frozen or homemade soups can be turned into an epicurean's delight with a few masterful touches in the kitchen. Interesting pasta such as tiny elbow macaroni or fine curly noodles add sparkle to soups. Oregano is a good clear-soup spice.

Sprinkle the top of individual servings of soup with finely chopped chives, watercress, or green onion tops. Cheese croutons sprinkled with parsley, or rye rounds with parmesan cheese will enhance many soups. Beat cream soups with an egg beater for a bubbly top.

Salads — The secret of the excellent salad lies in the contrast of texture, color, form and flavors of the greens, fruits or vegetables and in the deft handling of the seasoning.

The common tossed salad can include lettuce, tomatoes, celery, cucumbers, onions, green peppers. The oil in the dressing may be olive oil or any mild vegetable oil. Lemon juice or wine vinegar gives interesting flavor — as does herb vinegar (tarragon, basil or garlic).

Develop extra zest in salads with a bit of dill, mustard, poppy seeds, tarragon, sweet basil or rosemary. Decorate with anchovies, olives, cheese.

Vegetables — Serve as a separate course so that the flavor of the herbs, spices and sauces are fully appreciated. A small amount of sugar added to the so-called sweet vegetables — carrots, peas, corn, beets — improves their flavor. Butter-sautéed almonds give green or wax beans, asparagus and broccoli a fancy touch.

Use a basic white sauce to dress up vegetables; add sharp cheddar cheese for a zippy cheese sauce. A hollandaise sauce or sour cream sauce beaten until frothy makes vegetables unforgettable.

Meats and Meat Casseroles — Brown gravies or tomato sauces complement all meats or meat dishes. Brown gravies can be varied with the addition of brown sugar, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce. Or, better yet, try ginger snaps for flavor and thickening. Tomato sauce can be as simple as opening a can of tomatoes or tomato paste. Or, they can be enhanced with chopped onion, garlic, bouillon cube, parmesan cheese, nutmeg, oregano, parsley, celery, allspice or pepper. Even cinnamon does wonders to tomato sauces.

For quick and easy meat sauces, use canned soups such as cream of celery, mushroom, chicken or tomato.

Make steaks and chops more interesting by rubbing them with a clove of garlic and brushing with butter in addition to normal salt and pepper. A squirt of Worcestershire sauce is a good addition before broiling. To serve, spread steak with soft butter, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley and garnish with large sautéed or broiled mushrooms.

Desserts — Add unusual touches for an expected delight. When whipping cream to top a pie, cake or pudding, add a few drops of food coloring. Keep a variety of items handy to sprinkle on all desserts, such as peanuts, toasted coconut, grated orange rind, raisins, dates, corn flakes, graham cracker crumbs, mint leaves, honey or molasses.

A final word — Tables should be beautifully arranged and food attractively served. The wise hostess knows that eye appeal and appetite appeal go hand in hand.

These ratings may be found in the new Agronomy Guide available at the Extension Office.

Although yield is important, other factors, including intended use, resistance to bacterial wilt, winter hardiness, earliness and rate of recovery after harvest, should be considered in the selection of an alfalfa variety. Many Ohio farms should have at least two alfalfa varieties to give some spread in the alfalfa harvest schedule.

Resistance to bacterial wilt is desirable when the field is to remain in alfalfa for three or more years. Wilt-susceptible varieties may suffer severe stand losses from the bacterial wilt disease during the third and fourth hay years.

Although some alfalfa varieties are more winterhardy than others, all of the "hardy" varieties offered for sale in Ohio have enough winter hardiness to survive a typical Ohio winter. Ohio Pay Hike Stalled

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Pay envelopes for state employees contained a note from Gov. John J. Gilligan Friday but not the pay raise granted them by the legislature Jan. 15.

The three-paragraph note expressed optimism that the federal Pay Board will approve the salary package "in a matter of days."

"Once approval is granted," Gilligan said, "all of Ohio's employees will receive their pay increase retroactive to Dec. 26 as provided for in the pay bill."

Generally, the raises were 38 cents an hour or 10 per cent across the board, whichever is higher. In some categories, however, the raises went higher than 10 per cent.

The pay board has set a 5.5 per cent lid on any pay raises.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Husband Not Interested In Sex

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because I am terribly frustrated and am too ashamed to talk to anyone else about this problem. I am married to a basically wonderful guy, except for one problem. He is totally uninterested in sex. He's 28, handsome, and in apparent good health, so don't tell me to send him to a doctor. He loathes them.

He is very intelligent, has a Ph. D. in History, and his work is his life. He says people who are interested in sex are insecure, and so intellectually dead that sex is all they have left. He always has an excuse for avoiding it. He's either too tired, it's too late, or he's too preoccupied in something he's reading.

I am 27, have won several beauty contests in college. I'm cheerful, educated, mentally and physically healthy, and all I want is a decent sex life. I've tried all the gimmicks. Sexy nightgowns, discussing it with him, leaving books and magazines articles around for him to see. Even crying.

Nothing helps. We have one child (a miracle) and my husband didn't come near me for six months after that. I feel rejected. I've considered having an affair, but I don't feel too guilty to enjoy it. I don't want to divorce him because outside of this one failing, I love him.

How can I turn him on? ABANDONED IN BED IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR ABBY: I'm interested in your views on children joining organizations. Do you feel it is wise to force a child to join groups such as Girl Scouts or Boy Scouts when the child shows no interest in being a part of it?

I am accused of letting my children rule me because I have given them a choice in such things. It has been suggested to me that children are not always a good judge of whether or not they'll enjoy themselves, and often find they enjoy things they were negative about to start with. What do you think?

A MOTHER DEAR ABBY: I wouldn't "force" a child to join anything, but if I thought he would gain from it, I would certainly present it in the most attractive way possible.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for the beautiful idea of sending roses to your mother on your birthday. I am ashamed that after 19 years, I never gave it a thought. My mother has done so much for me, I think it's about time I started giving instead of taking. Thank you again, Abby, you may have started a tradition.

K. IN FAIRFIELD, CONN. DEAR K.: I didn't "start" anything. That lovely idea has been around for years.

4-H On The Go

By FRED SANDROCK

County Extension Agent, 4-H It's exciting to be the parents of an enthusiastic 4-H'er. Your 4-H'er will be making new friends and having fun with a group of other 4-H members. A 4-H club is a little democracy in action, and your 4-H'er will be learning how to get things done in a group.

You can help by finding out from your 4-H'er when the club is meeting and see that this is included on the family calendar.

See that he has a way to get to 4-H meetings and activities. If his club decides to have dues, maybe he'll need help in earning the money.

Encourage his active participation by volunteering your home for a club meeting, your car for transportation, your best cookies for refreshments.

Be interested in club activities, ask questions and take time to listen.

Make a special effort to attend if his club plans a special event for parents.

If your 4-H'er becomes an officer or gets a committee assignment — help him learn how to do it the best he can.

Your 4-H'er will have some important people in his life — his volunteer adult advisors and/or 4-H junior leaders. They will teach him how to do interesting things and help him grow into a responsible person.

These volunteer leaders will expect (and deserve) your support.

If you don't know your 4-H member's advisor, call and get acquainted.

Let him know you appreciate his working with your 4-H'er and encourage your 4-H'er to respect him and be grateful.

If problems occur, give the advisor a call and discuss them — don't gripe to others.

If the 4-H leader suggests a new way of doing something, encourage your 4-H'er to try it. Most things have more than one "right" way. Don't force your 4-H'er to choose between you and his advisor — you're both important people to him.

Yevtushenko Visits With President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko visited the White House for a chat with President Nixon.

Hearing that Yevtushenko was in this country on a poetry-reading tour, the President expressed interest in seeing him and a meeting was arranged Thursday, according to Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

ABANDONED IN BED IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR ABBY: If he's physically healthy (and don't be sure he is), his problem could be in his head. But no matter where it is, unless HE regards it as a problem, which he wants to solve, you're fighting a losing battle. So you can either continue in a marriage that's sexually inadequate, or call it quits. It's up to you.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I shouldn't complain because my wife comes about as close to being perfect as any woman I've ever met, but lately she has developed a rather strange fault. She has fallen in love with another man.

Before you say, "Well, what's so strange about that?" hear me out. She has never even met this man.

He's one of those guys who is on the radio for several hours at a crack. People call him up and they argue, rap, carry on right on the air. (They're called "communicators.")

When this guy with the golden voice (as she calls him) is on the radio, my wife takes the telephone off the hook so nobody can disturb her. She had a fire in her kitchen the other day, and would you believe as she was running out of the house she grabbed a transistor radio so she wouldn't miss a word this guy said?

Since she's become hooked on this guy, that's all she talks about.

Any suggestions?

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Don't complain. Let her enjoy the man with the golden voice. It's good insurance against competition who may appear in the flesh.

DEAR ABBY: I am interested in your views on children joining organizations.

I am accused of letting my children rule me because I have given them a choice in such things. It has been suggested to me that children are not always a good judge of whether or not they'll enjoy themselves, and often find they enjoy things they were negative about to start with. What do you think?

A MOTHER

DEAR MOHER: I wouldn't "force" a child to join anything, but if I thought he would gain from it, I would certainly present it in the most attractive way possible.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for the beautiful idea of sending roses to your mother on your birthday. I am ashamed that after 19 years, I never gave it a thought. My mother has done so much for me, I think it's about time I started giving instead of taking. Thank you again, Abby, you may have started a tradition.

DEAR K.: I didn't "start" anything. That lovely idea has been around for years.

4-H On The Go

By FRED SANDROCK

County Extension Agent, 4-H It's exciting to be the parents of an enthusiastic 4-H'er. Your 4-H'er will be making new friends and having fun with a group of other 4-H members. A 4-H club is a little democracy in action, and your 4-H'er will be learning how to get things done in a group.

You can help by finding out from your 4-H'er when the club is meeting and see that this is included on the family calendar.

See that he has a way to get to 4-H meetings and activities. If his club decides to have dues, maybe he'll need help in earning the money.

Encourage his active participation by volunteering your home for a club meeting, your car for transportation, your best cookies for refreshments.

Be interested in club activities, ask questions and take time to listen.

Make a special effort to attend if his club plans a special event for parents.

If your 4-H'er becomes an officer or gets a committee assignment — help him learn how to do it the best he can.

Your 4-H'er will have some important people in his life — his volunteer adult advisors and/or 4-H junior leaders. They will teach him how to do interesting things and help him grow into a responsible person.

These volunteer leaders will expect (and deserve) your support.

If you don't know your 4-H member's advisor, call and get acquainted.

Let him know you appreciate his working with your 4-H'er and encourage your 4-H'er to respect him and be grateful.

If problems occur, give the advisor a call and discuss them — don't gripe to others.

If the 4-H leader suggests a new way of doing something, encourage your 4-H'er to try it. Most things have more than one "right" way. Don't force your 4-H'er to choose between you and his advisor — you're both important people to him.

Key Is Interpretation

The 1972 Campaign expenditures Act is supposed to correct the abuses and close the loopholes of the Corrupt Practices Act of 1925.

The new set of rules for political campaign spending provides that candidates for federal office may spend no more than 10 cents per voter in broadcast advertising. It also contains new rules for reporting gifts and expenses.

Whether the new law is effective will depend upon its enforcement. What the new code is designed to do basically is what the 1925 act also was designed to do at the time it was enacted. But over the years a number of loopholes have been adudicated into that law which made it virtually useless.

One of the most flagrant examples was the early interpretation that candidates need not report expenditures made by committees over which they exercised no direct control.

This opened the doors of evasion so wide a number of candidates for federal offices every election drove their campaigns through without any reportable income or expenditures.

If the 1972 version fares any better, it will be because all three branches of government want an honest accounting of funds spent in campaigns for federal posts. If the new law was simply meant to be eyewash, the fact will be apparent as soon as the interpretations come rolling in.

Predictable Reaction

Hanoi's reaction since President Nixon put on public display his Vietnam peace proposals was predictable. The North Vietnamese pretend shock that the United States would reveal a stalemate reached in secret.

What they mean is they have been fished in a game of their own making, and they find the sudden limelight distinctly uncomfortable.

There were no illusions the communists would jump at the chance to accept an agreement in public which they had spurned in private. But it is logical to assume the President and his aides felt there was a chance the obstinate attitude of the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong could be swayed by public pressure — from any number of sources — if the secret negotiations were laid bare.

Like a child with his hand caught in the cookie jar, Hanoi's initial reaction is to cover up its guilt. Upon reflection, it may yet decide that among various options the one offered by the U.S. is a very fair one for it, Washington and Indochina.

Promising Start

While the United States was compiling a record trade loss in 1971 of more than $2 billion, the key to overcoming that deficit was beginning to assert itself. The Labor Department reports that productivity for the year grew by 3.4 per cent in the private non-farm economy.

That was the largest increase in five years. And the performance improved as the year progressed.

In the fourth quarter, productivity for the non-farm sector grew by 4.9 per cent, more than twice the third quarter gain and almost twice the 20-year average increase of 2.6 per cent.

If that momentum can be continued or improved, 1972 can become the year for major improvement in the battle against inflation. Increased productivity represents increased buying power when combined with an effective lid on rising costs and prices.

The fourth quarter productivity increase could have been due to an unusual combination of circumstances. But these are times when the usual combinations are not good enough anymore. Unusually good results must become the new objectives.

It has largely gone unnoticed that, since the rebellion is conservative ranks against the Nixon Administration, conservatives have reaped a number of rewards. And the conjunction of rebellion with reward may not be entirely coincidental.

Where the Supreme Court is concerned, to be sure, President Nixon had long been pledged to a sharp break with the direction of the Warren Court, yet who would have anticipated quite so spectacular an appointment as William Rehnquist's? And add to that the sheer esthetic job of seeing such an appointment resisted with total ineffectuality by Senators, Kennedy, Bayh, and the rest as well as the New York Times.

And now, we have the Nixon budgetary proposals. One of the principal charges of John Ashbrook and the other rebelling conservatives has been that our strategic posture continues to deteriorate, and hat he Administration stands idly by and lets this happen. Conservatives, indeed, have not been the only ones calling attention to the unfavorable shift in naval and nuclear capacity. The budget now before us calls for some $6.3 billion more than last year — to be used for missile subs and for the upgrading of our naval, air, and mechanized forces.

There have been other things, both large and small: the near commitment to the renomination of Spiro Agnew, made during the interview with Dan Rather; the language of the Child Development bill veto, some of it lifted directly from a major speech by Senator James Buckley; the appointment of no-nonsense Prof. Ronald Berman as chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Nixon once remarked that he had learned from the 1962 election in California that though a Republican cannot win with the conservative vote alone, he also cannot win without it. It appears to me that Nixon is making a substantial effort to ensure that he has the support of conservatives in 1972, and I made the point to one of the strategists of the Ashbrook campaign, which is — though you would not learn it from the media — doing surprisingly well in New Hampshire.

The Ashbrook backer agreed that our strategic posture was a big item, perhaps the big item. "But," he went on, "it's not enough for he Administration to include that item in the budget. Who knows whether it will get through Congress or not? Even if it's appropriated, how do we know it will be spent? And it certainly will not get through Congress unless the President himself exerts some leadership in the matter. He has to tell the people just way the money is necessary. He has to explain the realities of the world situation to them. If he does this, they will listen. But if he doesn't, then, along about 1975, when it will be too late, all he will be able to do is say 'Look, I asked for the money, didn't I?'"

The essence of the Nixon problem for these conservatives thus seems to come back to the tired old matter of credibility. They want firm and above all visible leadership from the White House, visible enough to demonstrate just where the President's actual commitments lie.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There are elements of an old, old story in the report just released by the Securities and Exchange Commission on restructuring the nation's stock markets to make them simple, direct and open.

There will be three working committees, for example, whose job will be to study, report and propose on the policies outlined. Inherent in such recommendations, necessary as they might be, is delay.

There are fresh elements too. The SEC confirmed its intention of seeking one tape to report the prices of stocks on all exchanges — and even the prices of some stocks not so listed.

Under the existing system, each exchange has its own tape. Any investor reading that tape would never know if the stock he seeks is available elsewhere at a lower price.

Broadly summarized, the SEC sees the necessity for more competition among brokers and exchanges by bringing them into one central marketplace.

It intends to end the situation in which large institutions hold exchange seats mainly to trade for their own accounts. It hopes to bring more competition on large orders by lowering to $300,000 from $500,000 the level at which negotiated rather than fixed commissions are charged.

The recommendations, especially for one tape, would certainly make for securities markets "as simple, as direct and as open as we can," in the words of William J. Casey, the SEC chairman.

But implementing those intentions could be another thing. This is testy ground on which reside many powerfully vested financial interests. In addition, depending upon the amount of cooperation among exchanges, the antitrust laws conceivably could be tested.

Moreover, the implementation of any major changes in these billion-dollar market places must always be restrained by consideration for unknown and possibly adverse affects on the entire economy.

The old, old story is the slowness with which progress takes place. Change in the securities markets, no matter how badly needed, cannot come quickly. It takes time and courage to change practices whose origins are in another century.

Oil Companies Pay Damages

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Natural Resources said Friday Marathon Oil Co. of Findlay and Buckeye Pipeline Co. of Lima have paid the department more than $9,000 for accidental oil spills that killed wildlife.

Director William B. Nye said Marathon paid two claims resulting from traffic accidents involving its tank trucks. One was for $747.66 for 1,518 fish killed in Little Riley Creek in Allen County June 23, 1971. The second was for $2,269.74 for 56 muskrats killed in Seigel Ditch in Williams County March 2, 1971.

Buckeye Pipeline paid $6,536.75 for 47,589 fish killed in Little Riley Creek on July 12, 1970. Game protectors said jet fuel leaked into the stream from a break in a pipeline near Bluffton.

Come to a true accord with them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those very charming young people with much magnetic warmth that endears him or her to others and can bring great success, but take care early that your youngster does not develop fixed ideas and prejudices that can minimize the fine promise in this most interesting chart. There can be fame here, especially in investigative work of the highest order, government appointments, business or political leadership. Right religion early. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Artificial openings into the intestinal tract are known as "ileostomies" and "colostomies." These artificial openings in the abdominal wall are often life saving procedures.

Patients who have benefited from them are courageous because of their capacity to function normally in society despite this obvious handicap.

It is accepted that profound emotional reactions to such surgery are inevitable. It therefore takes a great deal of concentrated effort to prepare for a lifetime of strange attitudes about their body image.

Dr. Albert S. Lyons, Dr. Charles Winklesstein and Dr. Bernard C. Meyer, of the Mt. Sinai Hospital and Medical School in New York City, are but three of the many sensitive physicians who understand the emotional needs of these patients. Their teachings are directed at making the colostomy patient able to adjust and live with himself comfortably and in dignity.

There are now Colostomy Societies that help patients to readjust into society. They actually send representatives with fine psychological insight to show the patient before surgery how well he will be able to function in his daily life.

The management of this bewildering experience is a complex one. It requires a team that can oversee the medical, the surgical, the emotional, and the social problems associated with "ostomies."

Remember the word: prostaglandins.

Nixon Problem

By JEFFERY HART

It has largely gone unnoticed that, since the rebellion is conservative ranks against the Nixon Administration, conservatives have reaped a number of rewards. And the conjunction of rebellion with reward may not be entirely coincidental.

Where the Supreme Court is concerned, to be sure, President Nixon had long been pledged to a sharp break with the direction of the Warren Court, yet who would have anticipated quite so spectacular an appointment as William Rehnquist's? And add to that the sheer esthetic job of seeing such an appointment resisted with total ineffectuality by Seantors, Kennedy, Bayh, and the rest as well as the New York Times.

And now, we have the Nixon budgetary proposals. One of the principal charges of John Ashbrook and the other rebelling conservatives has been that our strategic posture continues to deteriorate, and hat he Administration stands idly by and lets this happen. Conservatives, indeed, have not been the only ones calling attention to the unfavorable shift in naval and nuclear capacity. The budget now before us calls for some $6.3 billion more than last year — to be used for missile subs and for the upgrading of our naval, air, and mechanized forces.

There have been other things, both large and small: the near commitment to the renomination of Spiro Agnew, made during the interview with Dan Rather; the language of the Child Development bill veto, some of it lifted directly from a major speech by Senator James Buckley; the appointment of no-nonsense Prof. Ronald Berman as chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Nixon once remarked that he had learned from the 1962 election in California that though a Republican cannot win with the conservative vote alone, he also cannot win without it. It appears to me that Nixon is making a substantial effort to ensure that he has the support of conservatives in 1972, and I made the point to one of the strategists of the Ashbrook campaign, which is — though you would not learn it from the media — doing surprisingly well in New Hampshire.

The Ashbrook backer agreed that our strategic posture was a big item, perhaps the big item. "But," he went on, "it's not enough for the Administration to include that item in the budget. Who knows whether it will get through Congress or not? Even if it's appropriated, how do we know it will be spent? And it certainly will not get through Congress unless the President himself exerts some leadership in the matter. He has to tell the people just way the money is necessary. He has to explain the realities of the world situation to them. If he does this, they will listen. But if he doesn't, then, along about 1975, when it will be too late, all he will be able to do is say 'Look, I asked for the money, didn't I?'"

The essence of the Nixon problem for these conservatives thus seems to come back to the tired old matter of credibility. They want firm and above all visible leadership from the White House, visible enough to demonstrate just where the President's actual commitments lie.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There are elements of an old, old story in the report just released by the Securities and Exchange Commission on restructuring the nation's stock markets to make them simple, direct and open.

There will be three working committees, for example, whose job will be to study, report and propose on the policies outlined. Inherent in such recommendations, necessary as they might be, is delay.

There are fresh elements too. The SEC confirmed its intention of seeking one tape to report the prices of stocks on all exchanges—and even the prices of some stocks not so listed.

Under the existing system, each exchange has its own tape. Any investor reading that tape would never know if the stock he seeks is available elsewhere at a lower price.

Broadly summarized, the SEC sees the necessity for more competition among brokers and exchanges by bringing them into one central marketplace.

It intends to end the situation

Oil Companies
Pay Damages

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Natural Resources said Friday Marathon Oil Co. of Findlay and Buckeye Pipeline Co. of Lima have paid the department more than $9,000 for accidental oil spills that killed wildlife.

Director William B. Nye said Marathon paid two claims resulting from traffic accidents involving its tank trucks. One was for $747.66 for 1,518 fish killed in Little Riley Creek in Allen County June 23, 1971. The second was for $2,269.74 for 56 muskrats killed in Seigel Ditch in Williams County March 2, 1971.

Buckeye Pipeline paid $6,536.75 for 47,589 fish killed in Little Riley Creek on July 12, 1970. Game protectors said jet fuel leaked into the stream from a break in a pipeline near Bluffton.

Come to a true accord with them.

There can be fame here, especially in investigative work of the highest order, government appointments, business or political leadership. Right religion early.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Remember the word "prostaglandins." It will not be long before this strange sounding word rolls off the tip of the tongue as readily as penicillin and cortisone.

When first I wrote about this three years ago I felt that the horizons of medicine were being expanded by these newly discovered substances. Since then, an enormous amount of exciting scientific data has been accumulated about prostaglandins, which may well become the drugs of the century.

They are a family of fatty acids occurring naturally in the body. Although they are not yet manufactured synthetically and are not commercially available, their importance is undeniable.

The prostaglandins may lead to the control of arthritis. They may be used to control high blood pressure. They are valuable in reducing severe inflammatory reactions. They are being used for the control of severe shock.

It is expected they will be of vital value in the treatment of asthma. Male sterility and the cure of peptic ulcers are more of the targets of these highly charged, scientific substances.

Many exciting uses for prostaglandins are being studied all over the world in laboratories and hospitals.

Remember the word: prostaglandins.

Artificial openings into the intestinal tract are known as "ileostomies" and "colostomies." These artificial openings in the abdominal wall are often life saving procedures.

Patients who have benefited from them are courageous because of their capacity to function normally in society despite this obvious handicap.

It is accepted that profound emotional reactions to such surgery are inevitable. It therefore takes a great deal of concentrated effort to prepare for a lifetime of strange attitudes about their body image.

Dr. Albert S. Lyons, Dr. Charles Winklesstein and Dr. Bernard C. Meyer, of the Mt. Sinai Hospital and Medical School in New York City, are but three of the many sensitive physicians who understand the emotional needs of these patients. Their teachings are directed at making the colostomy patient able to adjust and live with himself comfortably and in dignity.

There are now Colostomy Societies that help patients to readjust into society. They actually send representatives with fine psychological insight to show the patient before surgery how well he will be able to function in his daily life.

The management of this bewildering experience is a complex one. It requires a team that can oversee the medical, the surgical, the emotional, and the social problems associated with "ostomies."

Thank goodness dreary old January has gone by the board but I must say February hasn't gotten off to a very promising start. Just about everyone in our village has been under the weather and if it isn't the flu of one kind or another it is the purple whoompies or the blue blahs.

Word is that Juanita (Mrs. Charles) Lawson, a patient at Berger Hospital, is somewhat improved but she is still undergoing a number of tests and observations to determine the exact cause of her illness. All her many friends are hopeful for her complete recovery and return to her cooking duties at Westfall where she is much missed. Juanita's hospitalization cancelled out plans for a birthday dinner for her mate, Charlie, who celebrated another year on Jan. 31. Belated birthday greetings, sir.

Mrs. Inez Lingo and Mrs. Una Higman (sisters, by the way) visited a while last Friday with their friend, Mrs. Ethel Walston, a patient at Berger. She is on the improving side of the ledger. Remember now to send cards of cheer to our afflicted.

Cora Lee (Mrs. Ron) Beatty is still unable to be out and around and remains under her doctor's supervision.

Heart Sunday for 1972 is Feb. 27 and chairman for the Circleville and Pickaway County area is Mike Brown who has served in this capacity for several years. Chairman for the townships west of the Scioto River is yours truly and we are now in the process of contacting township captains.

Response has been indeed gratifying thus far. Hopefully all Township Captains can be announced next week and then they in turn will select their volunteers. These, too, will be published as a means of identification. A possible heart fund balloon sale is in the planning stage for our village. Also, contributing envelopes will be distributed in each of the Westfall Schools for any student who might wish to be a part of the program. The firm date for this has not been established but will be very soon at which time Superintendent Don Shearer will so notify each building principal.

Another of Williamsport's fine senior citizens has been called to final rest. Mr. Irvan Pickle, a familiar figure around town for many years, passed away this week at the Circleville Home where he had been a patient for nearly three years. He was predeceased by his wife Jane Ater, and they had no surviving issue.

A native born villager, Mr. Pickle was a mason by trade until his retirement from the workaday world. However, he continued his lively interest in his community until stricken with a stroke. Time passes, life goes on, life ceases, but never from our memory fades those for whom we hold deep affection.

Bouquets this week to Claire Hansen, a member of the Westfall senior class, for her extremely well written, thought provoking article in Mustang Country. It was published in The Herald on Tuesday, Feb. 1, and if you didn't read it you should.

In the sharing corner this week we have a recipe for sloppy joes that is a bit different from the norm. It is one our household has used for a number of years and folks always ask for the recipe.

1 lb. ground beef

1 onion, chopped
1 can Chicken Gumbo soup
2 (or more) tablespoons catsup
1 (or less) tablespoons mustard
Flour for thickening

Cook ground beef until loses red color (I always use a little water rather than the browning method but either is o.k.) stir in chopped onion toward the end of beef being cooked, simmer a while, add enough flour to thicken (probably 1 or 2 tablespoons), stir in undiluted soup, catsup and mustard and of course salt and pepper to suit taste. Simmer until heated through thoroughly.

Serve on buns. If they are warmed or toasted a little, it is even more delicious. The catsup and mustard can be increased or decreased to a person's particular taste but some should be definitely used. Believe it or not but this is good on mashed potatoes!

A communique from the desk of Ed Holmes, our Westfall Guidance Counselor of many talents, contained an item I found to be one of the best in a long time. His note commented that it had been read at a recent Mental Health Assn. meeting of which he is vice president to President Mary Ann Willoughby. We will use this as our thought for the week.

JUST FOR TODAY

JUST FOR TODAY I will be happy. This assumes that what Abraham said is true, that "most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." Happiness is from within: it is not a matter of externals.

JUST FOR TODAY I will adjust myself to what is, and not try to adjust everything to my own desires. I will take my family, my business and my luck as they come and fit myself to them.

JUST FOR TODAY I will take care of my body. I will exercise it, care for it, nourish it, not abuse it or neglect it, so that it will be a perfect machine for my bidding.

JUST FOR TODAY I will try to strengthen my mind. I will learn something useful. I will not be a mental loafer. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

JUST FOR TODAY I will exercise my soul in three ways; I will do something in good turn for somebody and not be found out. I will do at least two things I don't want to do, as William James suggests, just for exercise.

JUST FOR TODAY I will be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress as becomingly as possible, talk low, act courteously, be liberal with praise, criticize not at all, nor find fault with anything and not try to regulate or improve anyone.

JUST FOR TODAY I will try to live through this day only, not to tackle my whole life problem at once. I can do things for twelve hours that would appall me if I had to keep them up for a lifetime.

JUST FOR TODAY I will have a program. I will write down what I expect to do every hour. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it. It will eliminate two pests, hurry and indecision.

JUST FOR TODAY I will have a quiet, half hour all by

Cook ground beef until loses red color (I always use a little water rather than the browning method but either is o.k.) stir in chopped onion toward the end of beef being cooked, simmer a while, add enough flour to thicken (probably 1 or 2 tablespoons), stir in undiluted soup, catsup and mustard and of course salt and pepper to suit taste. Simmer until heated through thoroughly.

Serve on buns. If they are warmed or toasted a little, it is even more delicious. The catsup and mustard can be increased or decreased to a person's particular taste but some should be definitely used. Believe it or not but this is good on mashed potatoes!

A communique from the desk of Ed Holmes, our Westfall Guidance Counselor of many talents, contained an item I found to be one of the best in a long time. His note commented that it had been read at a recent Mental Health Assn. meeting of which he is vice president to President Mary Ann Willoughby. We will use this as our thought for the week.

JUST FOR TODAY

JUST FOR TODAY I will be happy. This assumes that what Abraham said is true, that "most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." Happiness is from within: it is not a matter of externals.

JUST FOR TODAY I will adjust myself to what is, and not try to adjust everything to my own desires. I will take my family, my business and my luck as they come and fit myself to them.

JUST FOR TODAY I will take care of my body. I will exercise it, care for it, nourish it, not abuse it or neglect it, so that it will be a perfect machine for my bidding.

JUST FOR TODAY I will try to strengthen my mind. I will learn something useful. I will not be a mental loafer. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

JUST FOR TODAY I will exercise my soul in three ways; I will do something in good turn for somebody and not be found out, I will do at least two things I don't want to do, as William James suggests, just for exercise.

JUST FOR TODAY I will be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress as becomingly as possible, talk low, act courteously, be liberal with praise, criticize not at all, nor find fault with anything and not try to regulate or improve anyone.

JUST FOR TODAY I will try to live through this day only, not to tackle my whole life problem at once. I can do things for twelve hours that would appall me if I had to keep them up for a lifetime.

JUST FOR TODAY I will have a program. I will write down what I expect to do every hour. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it. It will eliminate two pests, hurry and indecision.

JUST FOR TODAY I will have a quiet, half hour all by

Logan Elm Nipped By Trace, 66-60

By PUNK JONES
Herald Sports Writer

Zane Trace calmly controlled the pace of the game as they squeaked by Logan Elm 66-60 in a Scioto Valley Conference game played at the Spangler Gym Friday evening.

Dave Hammond, who got into foul trouble early in the game, paced the Pioneers with 31 markers at a 67 per cent accuracy rate from the field. Hammond also led his team in rebounding with ten.

Rounding out the balanced scoring attack of Zane Trace were Rick Elder with 11 points and eight rebounds, Doug Ramsey at 12, Bill Miller eight and Doug Strawser with four key points.

Pacing the Braves' losing effort was Tom Sykes with 19, seven coming from the free throw line. Hustling Tim Justice followed Sykes at 17. Doug Barnett 11 and nine rebounds, Alex Jones popped nine and grabbed ten rebounds and Jeff Young and Gary Benner each scored two.

THE Pioneers led the way statistically hitting 41 per cent of their shots from the field, making 28 of 67, sank 10 of 15 free throws for 66 per cent, pulled down 33 missed shots, lost the ball 11 times on turnovers and committed 13 personal fouls.

The Braves made 24 of 59 of their shots taken from the field for 40 per cent, hit 12 of 16 foul shots at 75 per cent, grabbed 34 rebounds, turned the ball over 14 times and made 14 team fouls.

Hammond made the first bucket with a shot underneath. Logan Elm then got the lead for the first and last time of the ball game with shots by Young and Jones. With five minutes left to play in the first canto, the game was tied at eight. The Pioneers picked up eight points on the Braves and with a jump shot by Ramsey, the score at the buzzer was 17-9.

Barnett came out of the huddle and sank a free throw for Logan Elm and then Hammond went to work with a three point play and a goal underneath putting the Pioneers 12 points in front of Logan Elm.

The Pioneers went ahead by 13 with the score 24-11 and it looked as if Zane Trace would run away with the game. But hustling junior guard, Tim Justice, sparked the Braves' offense with six quick points and the score was 28-19 with 1:15 left in the half. Alex Jones scored on a jumper, bringing the Braves within seven.

The feature shot of the game came with one second left in the half when Justice smoked the nets with an amazing off balanced half court shot putting the Braves back into the ball game 28-23 and leaving the fans in roaring applause.

THE second half started with an uncontested lay-up by Hammond, Jones, Sykes and Barnett scored the next six points for Logan Elm narrowing the margin to two, 30-28. It was a nip and tuck ball game the rest of the canto and the buzzer sounded after Justice hit a jumper making the score 41-40 — Zane Trace.

The game remained tight during the first two minutes of the final period and with five minutes to play the score stood at 50-50. Zane Trace pulled out in front of the Braves and kept a steady four point lead for the two minutes and with 2:30 remaining to play, Bill Miller scored a key three-point play, putting the Pioneers out front 61-54. Miller scored his last five points of the game with free throws and the conference tilt ended 66-60.

Logan Elm now stands 6-8 for the season and 3-4 for the league with three more games on the schedule. Zane Trace is 10-5 for the season and 5-3 in the league.

The Little Braves came back after bringing down 11 points in the first quarter to beat Zane Trace 57-44. It was the sixth win in a row for the reserves and they are 10-5 for the season with a chance to win the league Jayvee title in next week's game with East Clinton. The Little Braves were paced by the scoring attack of Steve Sargent who fired in 15 points. Sargent was followed by Terry Crumley with 13, Stew Jones ten, Brad Luckhart seven and Scott Bower six.

Logan Elm will travel to the top of the hill in Chillicothe tonight to battle Bishop Flaget.

Xavier Grid Coach Quits As Protest

CINCINNATI (AP) — Xavier football coach Dick Selcer resigned Friday, saying cuts in the athletic budget would prevent the school from competing at its present level, although this year's team could be a winner.

Thomas Ceccini, 28, Xavier defensive line coach who was appointed Selcer's successor said he would concentrate on recruiting locally and would use freshmen in varsity competition.

"Actually, I resigned Wednesday, but they asked me to stay on and I appreciated that," said Selcer, adding that he asked the school to retain Ceccini.

"Basically, what it came down to was I recently got a rundown on what they were projecting for the next few years.

"The university is facing a dilemma on the economic side of the program, and yet, I have to look at it from the coach's side.

"It is a matter of cutbacks in scholarships, staff and staff salaries, plus general reductions."

Ten eagers scored for the visitors, led by Greg Prater with 20. Also scoring in double figures were Barbee with 18, Eldridge with 12 and Bolte with 15.

Game scoring laurels went to Larry Harris of Westfall who sank 11 from the field and four at the foul line for 26. Harris also pulled down 11 rebounds for Westfall.

Greenfield Sits Atop League With Big Win

Greenfield McClain's Tigers blitzed Miami Trace for three quarters and held off a furious Panther rally in the final period to win in the Miami Trace gym 72-69 Friday night and take undisputed lead in the South Central Ohio League.

Greenfield, employing their run and shoot offense, broke off with a 15-6 first quarter advantage, 31-23 halftime lead, and 50-43 third quarter margin.

Miami Trace actually pulled within two points in the final minutes of the game as their press, combined with homecourt confusion rattled the Tigers.

The win leaves Greenfield 7-1 in the league, their only loss coming on an earlier encounter with Miami Trace. They are 13-2 overall.

MIKE Hull paced Greenfield's win with 18 points, Frank Stroebel added 17 and David Trefz had 14.

Kemmy Goodson tallied 25 for Miami Trace, but the only Panther in double figures was Glenn Gifford with 12 points.

Hillsboro completely dominated Wilmington 65-60 in the second half of another league clash Friday night.

Hillsboro saw their 17-14 lead turn into a one point deficit 32-31, at the half. But Hillsboro grabbed control of the game and entered the last period with a 44-39 edge and limited Wilmington to just 11 points in the final period.

Jeff Hodson had 20 points for Hillsboro and Robert Raivk scored 18 to lead Wilmington.

Circleville's Tigers kept a firm hold on third place by downing Washington C.H. 70-64 in the Blue Lion gym.

Tigers Down Lions, 70-64

By DAVE AMEY
Herald Staff Writer

Circleville's up and down Tigers outthusted and out-muscled Washington Court House Friday night on the Blue Lion floor to take a 70-64 South Central Ohio League team victory.

Tiger fans saw their Circleville team break the tight game open in the final four minutes with key rebounding and fine defense.

Both teams played tight basketball at the start of the game, however the Tigers took early control thanks to their quickness and shooting ability.

Washington C.H. employed a sticky 2-3 zone defense that rattled Coach John Lawhorn's charges until they started setting for good shots and trying to expose individual weaknesses. It was a blessing in disguise.

THE Tigers hit on 27 of 53 shots from the floor for a 50 per cent plus average. Washington tried the same number of shots, and netted 25 for a strong 48 per cent.

Circleville didn't enjoy much of an advantage at the free throw line either, although they connected on two more shots.

The Tigers tried 13 charity tosses and hit on 16 for a 70 per cent average. Washington canned 14 of 20 free throws for a pure 70 per cent mark. Relying on long jump shots over the zone by Tiger forward Dave Truex, and some well placed lead passes from Terry Morrison to Don Valentine, Circleville opened a quick 15-11 first quarter lead.

The Tigers relaxed their 1-3-1 zone defense at the start of the second period and the Blue Lions took maximum advantage of the situation, drove for their basket with the opening. The result was five quick free throws to knot the score at 17-17 as harried Tigers were caught with fouls.

Washington continued to pound at the Circleville middle and complemented their attack with some long range shooting that brought them on top 28-25 at one point in the second half.

HOWEVER the taller Tigers trimmed the margin to 32-31 at the half time break with timely tips of missed shots by Dan Graham and Don Valentine.

Circleville switched to their 1-3-1 defense as the second half started, but Washington had the momentum and kept their slim lead over the Tigers in a see-saw battle for 5 minutes of the third period.

But Morrison and Truex ripped the nets from 20 feet on two straight shots that gave the Tigers a 48-45 at the end of the period.

Circleville stayed with their defense until about 3½ minutes remained in the game and then switched to a tenacious 1-2-2 defense that netted the Blue Lions only three free throws and 2 baskets the remainder of the game.

Terry Morrison, Tiger guard, was high scorer as he netted 7 of 16 field goal attempts and 9 of 10 free throws for 23 points. But his outstanding contribution to the Tiger win Friday was his leadership.

Morrison directed the Tiger attack when the going was roughest.

ALTHOUGH his performance was not overshadowed by any one teammate, he quarterbacked the squad to function as a team.

The Tiger big men came up with probably their finest showing in the team win.

Dave Truex, magnificent with his long jump shot, hit on seven of 15 field goal attempts from the corners that snapped WCH momentum and two of four free throws for 16 points. He also cleared the boards with eight rebounds.

Don Valentine, getting some excellent assists from Morrison early in the game, tallied 12 points on five field goals and two free throws. But he also collected seven big rebounds.

Dan Graham connecting on four of six field goal attempts, totaled 9 points for the night and hauled in 6 rebounds.

Greg Hoskins, seeing much floor work, canned two of two attempts from the field for four points. Jim Neal had a bucket and free throw for three points and Mike Hamrick hit a field goal in his only attempt and grabbed two key rebounds in the Tiger's last quarter spur.

BLUE Lion team Captain Steve Shaw paced his team with 15 points on seven field goals and a free throw.

Dick Witherspoon added 14, Chris Shaper had 12, Chuck Bath 11, Joe Downs 8 and Al Donahue 4.

Circleville outrebounded the Blue Lions 25 to 19, and had four tip-ins of missed shots.

The win leaves Circleville 10-4 for the season with three of the losses coming in the SCOL. Tigers trounced Washington C.H. 86-65 at the High School gym earlier in the season.

Circleville plays host to Hamilton Twp. tonight at the high school gym in a non-league game.

And Fleckman, who had a share of the lead at one time, bogeyed two of his last three holes and borrowed a pair of white undertakers' gloves from his caddy to play the 18th hole when it became so wet he had trouble gripping the clubs.

Fleckman with a 71 and 137 was alone in third place.

Reds Start Farm Club

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds will field a minor league club in the newly formed Florida East Coast League this year to replace their Sioux Falls, S.D., team in the Northern League.

The Sioux Falls team has disbanded.

The new team will play at Melbourne along with a Minnesota Twins team. Houston and Montreal will also field teams in the league at Cocoa, Fla. It will be basically a "rookie league," a Reds spokesman said.

The Reds signed three rookies Friday—Kent Burdick, Ken Griffey and Gene Locklear, all outfielders.

Burdick, 21, from Jacksonville, Wis., hit .295 at Tampa, Fla. and stole 24 bases; Griffey, from Donora Pa., posted .342 at the plate with the same team, stealing 25 bases; and Locklear, 22, from Pembroke, N.C., hit .323 for Three Rivers in the Eastern League.

Logan Elm Nipped By Trace, 66-60

By PUNK JONES
Herald Staff Writer

Zane Trace calmly controlled the pace of the game as they squeaked by Logan Elm 66-60 in a Scioto Valley Conference game played at the Spangler Gym Friday evening.

Dave Hammond, who got into foul trouble early in the game, paced the Pioneers with 31 markers at a 67 per cent accuracy rate from the field. Hammond also led his team in rebounding with ten.

Rounding out the balanced scoring attack of Zane Trace were Rick Edler with 11 points and eight rebounds, Doug Ramsey at 12, Bill Miller eight and Doug Strawser with four key points.

Pacing the Braves' losing effort was Tom Sykes with 19, seven coming from the free throw line. Hustling Tim Justice followed Sykes at 17, Doug Barnett 11 and nine rebounds, Alex Jones popped nine and grabbed ten rebounds and Jeff Young and Gary Benner each scored two.

THE Pioneers led the way statistically hitting 41 per cent of their shots from the field, making 28 of 67, sank 10 of 15 free throws for 66 per cent, pulled down 33 missed shots, lost the ball 11 times on turnovers and committed 13 personal fouls.

The Braves made 24 of 59 of their shots taken from the field for 40 per cent, hit 12 of 16 foul shots at 75 per cent, grabbed 34 rebounds, turned the ball over 14 times and made 14 team fouls.

Hammond made the first bucket with a shot underneath. Logan Elm then got the lead for the first and last time of the ball game with shots by Young and Jones. With five minutes left to play in the first canto the game was tied at eight. The Pioneers picked up eight points on the Braves and with a jump shot by Ramsey, the score at the buzzer was 17-9.

Barnett came out of the huddle and sank a free throw for Logan Elm and then Hammond went to work with a three point play and a goal underneath putting the Pioneers 12 points in front of Logan Elm.

The Pioneers went ahead by 13 with the score 24-11 and it looked as if Zane Trace would run away with the game. But hustling junior guard, Tim Justice, sparked the Braves' offense with six quick points and the score was 28-19 with 1:15 left in the half. Alex Jones scored on a jumper, bringing the Braves within seven.

The feature shot of the game came with one second left in the half when Justice smoked the nets with an amazing off balanced half court shot putting the Braves back into the ball game 28-23 and leaving the fans in roaring applause.

THE second half started with an uncontested lay-up by Hammond, Jones, Sykes and Barnett scored the next six points for Logan Elm narrowing the margin to two, 30-28. It was a nip and tuck ball game the rest of the canto and the buzzer sounded after Justice hit a jumper making the score 41-40 — Zane Trace.

The game remained tight during the first two minutes of the final period and with five minutes to play the score stood at 50-50. Zane Trace pulled out in front of the Braves and kept a steady four point lead for the two minutes and with 2:30 remaining to play, Bill Miller scored a key three-point play, putting the Pioneers out front 61-54. Miller scored his last five points of the game with free throws and the conference tilt ended 66-60.

Logan Elm now stands 6-8 for the season and 3-4 for the league with three more games on the schedule. Zane Trace is 10-5 for the season and 5-3 in the league.

The Little Braves came back after bringing down 11 points in the first quarter to beat Zane Trace 57-44. It was the sixth win in a row for the reserves and they are 10-5 for the season with a chance to win the league Jayvee title in next week's game with East Clinton. The Little Braves were paced by the scoring attack of Steve Sargent who fired in 15 points. Sargent was followed by Terry Crumley with 13, Stew Jones ten, Brad Luckhart seven and Scott Bower six.

Logan Elm will travel to the top of the hill in Chillicothe tonight to battle Bishop Flaget.

Xavier Grid Coach Quits As Protest

CINCINNATI (AP) — Xavier football coach Dick Selcer resigned Friday, saying cuts in the athletic budget would prevent the school from competing at its present level, although this year's team could be a winner.

Thomas Ceccini, 28, Xavier defensive line coach who was appointed Selcer's successor said he would concentrate on recruiting locally and would use freshmen in varsity competition.

"Actually, I resigned Wednesday, but they asked me to stay on and I appreciated that," said Selcer, adding that he asked the school to retain Ceccini.

"Basically, what it came down to was I recently got a rundown on what they were projecting for the next few years.

"The university is facing a dilemma on the economic side of the program, and yet, I have to look at it from the coach's side.

"It is a matter of cutbacks in scholarships, staff and staff salaries, plus general reductions."

QUARTERBACK — Tiger Terry Morrison drives around Washington's Joe Downs (14) to score a basket in Circleville's 70-64 win over the Blue Lions Friday night. The Tigers Dan Graham (45) is pictured blocking out Chris Shaper (24). Other Blue Lion in the picture is Al Donahue (20).

The weather was a major factor. The strongest field of the year was buffeted by shifting, changing winds and drenched with rain that went from drizzle to downpour on the Waialea Country Club course.

The conditions generally sent scores up, but the 42-year-old Palmer said that wasn't his problem.

"The story of my round was putting," he said. "I had 38 putts. I didn't one-putt once and I had two three-putts. That's the whole thing." He was far back in the field at 143.

Murphy had to wipe the rain from his freckled face before he could see anything at all after posting a hard-earned 70 and the 36-hole lead at 135.

And Fleckman, who had a share of the lead at one time, bogeyed two of his last three holes and borrowed a pair of white undertakers' gloves from his caddy to play the 18th hole when it became so wet he had trouble gripping the clubs.

Fleckman with a 71 and 137 was alone in third place.

Circleville Police investigated a two-car crash 9:07 p.m. Friday in which Cassandra Keaton, 18, Fourth Ave., was slightly injured.

She was a passenger in a car driven by George Waugh, 47, 167 Fourth Ave., as his car allegedly failed to heed a traffic signal device and was struck in the right side by a car driven by Stephen L. Palmer, Route 3, Mt. Sterling.

Two other passengers in Waugh's auto, 18-year-old Robert Keaton, 167 Fourth Ave., and Bobbie Jo Keaton, 3 weeks old, were uninjured.

Waugh was charged with failing to heed a traffic device by investigating Patrolman Jack Mills.

Hall-Adkins Post Observes Chaplains Day

In commemoration of the sacrifice of four armed forces chaplains during World War II, The American Legion will observe Religious Emphasis Week, February 5-11, and Four Chaplains Day, Sunday, Chaplain Paul Schillinger, of Hall-Adkins Post 134 has announced.

Legion officials and clergymen are planning special programs for the observance of the 28th anniversary of the sinking of the USS Dorchester and the heroism demonstrated by four chaplains These four — a Jewish rabbi, a Roman Catholic priest, and two Protestant ministers — calmly issued life belts to American servicemen aboard the troop transport after it was torpedoed on February 3, 1943.

When the supply of life preservers was exhausted, the four chaplains removed their own life belts and gave them to four soldiers and then stood calmly on the sinking ship, their arms around one another's shoulders and their heads bowed in prayer.

Inspired by the heroic deed of these four chaplains, The American Legion, each year marks the anniversary through special services and program in the communities of the nation.

Mayor Frank Barnhill has signed proclamations dedicating Sunday as Four Chaplains Day and next week as religious emphasis week in Circleville.

Senate OKs Foreign Aid

Conference Set For House Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved a foreign aid money bill that seeks to shift some of the emphasis from the old bilateral program to multilateral assistance through international organizations.

Since the House cut multilateral items sharply in its version of the measure, this could be the major point of contention when conferees meet on the aid bill, possibly next week.

The Senate voted 45 to 23 Friday to pass the aid bill, last of the regular appropriations bills for the fiscal year that began last July 1.

The aid program is currently operating under stopgap authority that runs out Feb. 22.

The Senate's version of the bill includes $2.339 billion for bilateral economic and military aid; $77.2 million for the Peace Corps; $507.8 million for the World Bank and Inter-American Development Bank; $147.7 million to aid Cuban and Jewish refugees; and $4.5 million for Army administration on Okinawa—a grand total of $3.076 billion.

The House voted $2.672 billion for bilateral economic and military aid; $68 million for the Peace Corps; just $150 million for the Inter-American Development Bank and nothing for the World Bank. It allotted $108.7 million for Cuban and Jewish refugees; and $4.2 million for Okinawa—a total of $3.003 billion.

Both bills are smaller than President Nixon's request, which included $3.595 billion for bilateral aid and an overall total of $4.342 billion.

McGovern wants to debate, but did not absolutely rule out a debate at another time.

McGovern himself has been challenged to a debate in New Hampshire by another Democrat, Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana.

In other political developments:

MCGOVERN: McGovern's national campaign manager said the South Dakota senator will concentrate his money on New Hampshire, skipping the Florida race because "Florida is a public relations state."

"We don't have the bankroll to dominate the networks," said Gary Hart at a New York news conference, adding McGovern would spend about $200,000 in New Hampshire.

JACKSON: Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, also campaigning in Wisconsin, said the nation is in "a crisis of law and order and justice."

"Some affluent white liberals who denounce 'law and order' as a racist issue seem to be saying that it's perfectly all right for crime to thrive in the ghetto—as if black Americans don't deserve any better," Jackson said at a meeting of the Professional Policemen's Protective Association in Milwaukee.

HUMPHREY: Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey spent the day in Philadelphia courting support of labor leaders for the Pennsylvania primary April 25. He appeared Friday night at a news conference with labor leaders, saying: "We always have a good deal of support from many of the (union) locals." The Minnesota Democrat speaks Saturday night at an AFL-CIO dinner for former Mayor James H. Tate.

WALLACE: Alabama Gov. George Wallace, campaigning in the Florida panhandle, lashed out against busing to achieve school desegregation and at tax breaks that keep levies high. "I'm not against being rich," Wallace said in Fort Walton Beach. "But I am against laws that make the rich richer." Busing, he said, was "as silly and asinine as anything concocted by the eggheads in Washington."

Wallace received a setback in Alabama later Friday when efforts failed to rescue his bill for a winner-take-all primary from a state Senate filibuster. Without the law, Alabama will still elect convention delegates on May 2, but they will go to the Democratic convention backing whomever they wish. State Democratic Chairman Robert S. Vance and others who opposed the Wallace-backed bill, said it would get the state's delegates barred because of regulations against unit voting.

Speaker Named For DSA Banquet

Gene W. Childress, program vice president of Ohio Jaycees, will be the speaker at the annual Distinguished Service Awards Banquet 6:30 p.m. Monday at the 4-H and Grange Building, Pickaway Fairgrounds.

Childress joined Sharonville Jaycees in 1965. He has held several local, district and state offices and has won both the Spoke and Spark Club Awards. He is also a district speak-up winner.

At the banquet the community's outstanding young man, senior citizen, outstanding farmer and teacher will be honored.

Suspect Prank In Fire Alert

First reported false alarm of 1972 for the Circleville Fire Department was believed to be a prank played on an elderly resident.

Mrs. Henrietta Stocklen called firemen at 2:55 this morning with the report that her house was afire. She told Lt. Ron Sowers that she had just received a telephone call from a person whose voice sounded youthful informing her that there was a fire in her home.

When the fire crew arrived, they could find no evidence of a blaze.

Eberhart Named To State Tree Farm Position

James E. Eberhart, plant forester for Container Corporation of America at Circleville, has been named chairman of the Ohio Tree Farm Committee. He succeeds T. H. Johnson, Jr. of Somerset.

The announcement was made by Herbert L. Morgan, president of the Ohio Forestry Association, local sponsor of The American Tree Farm System. Morgan is an industrial forester with The Mead Corporation at Chillicothe.

"As Ohio embarks on its second quarter century of tree farming, Jim Eberhart's leadership will bring to the program a new sense of purpose and direction," Morgan said.

Eberhart is a native of Loudonville. He earned a B.S. degree in biology from Kent State University in 1959 and a B.S. degree in forestry from the University of Michigan in 1960.

FROM 1960 to 1964 he was employed by the Ohio Division of Forestry, first as a ranger, on the Hocking Forest, then as a service forester on the Athens project.

In 1964 he joined Container as C.F.M. (continuous forest management) forester. In 1966 he became head of the company's forestry department at Circleville.

The Ohio Tree Farm Committee is comprised of volunteer foresters from industry and government. It gives public recognition to woodland owners who have demonstrated an outstanding ability to grow and harvest repeated tree crops.

Serving on the committee with Eberhart and Johnson are: David A. Schatz, Division of Forestry & Reclamation, New Philadelphia; Nate Liggett, The Mead Corporation, Chillicothe; William J. Bozett, consultant forester, Logan; A. Norris Quarm, Soil Conservation Service, Columbus; Clyde Heazlit, Division of Forestry & Reclamation, Portsmouth; James A. Hall-Adkins Post Observes Chaplains Day

In commemoration of the sacrifice of four armed forces chaplains during World War II, The American Legion will observe Religious Emphasis Week, February 5-11, and Four Chaplains Day, Sunday, Chaplain Paul Schilling, of Hall-Adkins Post 134 has announced.

Legion officials and clergymen are planning special programs for the observance of the 28th anniversary of the sinking of the USS Dorchester and the heroism demonstrated by four chaplains These four — a Jewish rabbi, a Roman Catholic priest, and two Protestant ministers — calmly issued life belts to American servicemen aboard the troop transport after it was torpedoed on February 3, 1943.

When the supply of life preservers was exhausted, the four chaplains removed their own life belts and gave them to four soldiers and then stood calmly on the sinking ship, their arms around one another's shoulders and their heads bowed in prayer.

Inspired by the heroic deed of these four chaplains, The American Legion, each year marks the anniversary through special services and program in the communities of the nation.

Mayor Frank Barnhill has signed proclamations dedicating Sunday as Four Chaplains Day and next week as religious emphasis week in Circleville.

Senate OKs Foreign Aid

Conference Set For House Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved a foreign aid money bill that seeks to shift some of the emphasis from the old bilateral program to multilateral assistance through international organizations.

Since the House cut multilateral items sharply in its version of the measure, this could be the major point of contention when conferees meet on the aid bill, possibly next week.

The Senate voted 45 to 23 Friday to pass the aid bill, last of the regular appropriations bills for the fiscal year that began last July 1.

The aid program is currently operating under stopgap authority that runs out Feb. 22.

The Senate's version of the bill includes $2.339 billion for bilateral economic and military aid; $77.2 million for the Peace Corps; $507.8 million for the World Bank and Inter-American Development Bank; $147.7 million to aid Cuban and Jewish refugees; and $4.5 million for Army administration on Okinawa—a grand total of $3.076 billion.

The House voted $2.672 billion for bilateral economic and military aid; $68 million for the Peace Corps; just $159 million for the Inter-American Development Bank and nothing for the World Bank. It allotted $108.7 million for Cuban and Jewish refugees; and $4.2 million for Okinawa—a total of $3.003 billion.

Both bills are smaller than President Nixon's request, which included $3.595 billion for bilateral aid and an overall total of $4.342 billion.

McGovern wants to debate, but did not absolutely rule out a debate at another time.

McGovern himself has been challenged to a debate in New Hampshire by another Democrat, Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana.

In other political developments:

MCGOVERN: McGovern's national campaign manager said the South Dakota senator will concentrate his money on New Hampshire, skipping the Florida race because "Florida is a public relations state."

"We don't have the bankroll to dominate the networks," said Gary Hart at a New York news conference, adding McGovern would spend about $200,000 in New Hampshire.

JACKSON: Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, also campaigning in Wisconsin, said the nation is in "a crisis of law and order and justice."

"Some affluent white liberals who denounce 'law and order' as a racist issue seem to be saying that it's perfectly all right for crime to thrive in the ghetto—as if black Americans don't deserve any better," Jackson said at a meeting of the Professional Policemen's Protective Association in Milwaukee.

HUMPHREY: Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey spent the day in Philadelphia courting support of labor leaders for the Pennsylvania primary April 25. He appeared Friday night at a news conference with labor leaders, saying: "We always have a good deal of support from many of the (union) locals." The Minnesota Democrat speaks Saturday night at an AFL-CIO dinner for former Mayor James H. Tate.

WALLACE: Alabama Gov. George Wallace, campaigning in the Florida panhandle, lashed out against busing to achieve school desegregation and at tax breaks that keep levies high. "I'm not against being rich," Wallace said in Fort Walton Beach. "But I am against laws that make the rich richer." Busing, he said, was "as silly and asinine as anything concocted by the eggheads in Washington."

Wallace received a setback in Alabama later Friday when efforts failed to rescue his bill for a winner-take-all primary from a state Senate filibuster. Without the law, Alabama will still elect convention delegates on May 2, but they will go to the Democratic convention backing whomever they wish. State Democratic Chairman Robert S. Vance and others who opposed the Wallace-backed bill, said it would get the state's delegates barred because of regulations against unit voting.

Speaker Named For DSA Banquet

Gene W. Childress, program vice president of Ohio Jaycees, will be the speaker at the annual Distinguished Service Awards Banquet 6:30 p.m. Monday at the 4-H and Grange Building, Pickaway Fairgrounds.

Childress joined Sharonville Jaycees in 1965. He has held several local, district and state offices and has won both the Spoke and Spark Club Awards. He is also a district speak-up winner.

At the banquet the community's outstanding young man, senior citizen, outstanding farmer and teacher will be honored.

Suspect Prank In Fire Alert

First reported false alarm of 1972 for the Circleville Fire Department was believed to be a prank played on an elderly resident.

Mrs. Henrietta Stockien called firemen at 2:55 this morning with the report that her house was afire. She told Lt. Ron Sowers that she had just received a telephone call from a person whose voice sounded youthful informing her that there was a fire in her home.

When the fire crew arrived, they could find no evidence of a blaze.

James E. Eberhart, plant forester for Container Corporation of America at Circleville, has been named chairman of the Ohio Tree Farm Committee. He succeeds T. H. Johnson, Jr. of Somerset.

The announcement was made by Herbert L. Morgan, president of the Ohio Forestry Association, local sponsor of The American Tree Farm System. Morgan is an industrial forester with The Mead Corporation at Chillicothe.

"As Ohio embarks on its second quarter century of tree farming, Jim Eberhart's leadership will bring to the program a new sense of purpose and direction," Morgan said.

Eberhart is a native of Loudonville. He earned a B.S. degree in biology from Kent State University in 1959 and a B.S. degree in forestry from the University of Michigan in 1960.

In 1964 he joined Container as C.F.M. (continuous forest management) forester. In 1966 he became head of the company's forestry department at Circleville.
